THE WASHINGTON CRITIC.

Washington, D. C.

RICHARD H. SYLVESTER, - - Editor. WASHINGTON, D. C., OCT. 31, 1885

The President's new order goes into effect on Monday. It reads as follows: After the 1st day of November the President will decline to grant interclews to these sacking public positions or their advocates. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Pridays during that month, from 10 to 11 o'clock in the morning, he will remove such other persons as call on strictly public business, and on the same days, at 132 in the afternoon, he will meet those who merely desire to pay their respects.

The idea of a Democratic President shutting himself up in this way and leaving the great Democratic party on the outside shivering in the cold, chilly winds of November, with fifteen hundred or more Presidential postoffices to fill, to say nothing of land offices, Indian agencies, district attorneyships, revenue collectorships, and other soft places too numerous to mention-the idea, we say, strikes the average politician as an altogether preposterous proceeding, without warrant in law or gospel, platform or precedent. What under the sun is a Democratic

President for, we are asked, if it is not to look out for the interests of the people who spent their time and money to elect him? What business, growls another, has he to surround himself with a Chinese wall against his own friends, as though it were they who owed him something for consenting to run for President, instead of his owing them a good deal more for consenting to support him? And how will he justify himself before the country, adds another metaphorical complainant, by thus crawling into a hole and taking the hole in with him? Is public office that sort of a public trust that it must be kept locked up in a safe of which even Sergeant Dinsmore doesn't know the combination?

THE CHITIC is very sorry for such of its Democratic friends as feel thus sorely disgruntled, but the President has set his foot down, and nothing short of another civil war can make him take it up. Our advice is to wait patiently upon the Executive pleasure. It is unwise to despair. The President has a good deal to do between now and the 1st Monday in December, which, if left undone, would be quite as great a misfortune to the country as the failure to capture another postoffice or territorial governorship.

Besides we are not quite so sure but what the new order will have the effect of facilitating rather than retarding the distribution of the spolls. Heretofore it has been all talk and no clder, so to speak. It may be that the President being relieved of the one will now have time to draw a little more of the other.

MR. O'REILLY AND THE LADIES John Boyle O'Rellly of Boston, post and patriot, has been tackling the question of Woman's Suffrage and writing a lecture about it. He is at times gushing; again he approaches the subject gingerly, and still again-if we may be allowed the somewhat ungra-cious expression-takes his theme bold ly by the horns. He thinks that woman suffrage "is the dream of a spiritual realm unsuited to a coarse, material, masculine civilization." Mr. O'Reilly always was a gallant gentleman, and like every true Irishman has a bit of blarney for the fair sex. Here is more of the same sort: "Women are better than men," but why should Mr. O'Reilly insert a dash after the word "men" and add this:

"and weaker." He thinks they ought to rule but at the same time tells them they cannot. Every woman knowthat when Mr. O'Rellly says, as he does, that she would make ideal laws he tells the exact truth; and the majority of women know by experience that when he says the men would break those laws ruthlevely he is still pinning himself down to solid facts. There is no young lady in this land who has reached that interesting period in her life of "being engaged" who has not laid down the law to the young man who is the party of the second part that he must not play billiards or smoke eigars. And there is no such interesting young lady who has not detected occasional chalk on the young man's clothes and more or less the odor of tobacco lurking in the left lappel of his coat where she is wont to rest her head. And what married July is there who has not fixed 10 o'clock band, but to find him taking an extension of time without unanimous consent to one o'clock the next morning?

Mr. O'Rellly next takes the bull by the horns, and says that it is the men who are intellectual. Truly he is a bold man. Where are Miss Susan B. Anthony, Miss Phoebe Couzins and the fascinating Mrs. Lillie Devereux Binke? We fear that the caramela which he gives the ladies will not constitute absolution for that statement neither for this utterance; "In our present intellectual and spiritual condition woman suffrage is a humbuga hypocrisy; a sentimental disease. In the following, however, Mr. O'Reilly retrieves a little: "Women at present, or at least those who want to vote, are as unfit to vote as men are. That's a slap at American manhood. The accomplished writer spems to be getting himself into hot water all the while, with only an occasional showerbath of more pleasant temperature, the procurative agent of which is taffy.

The winding up of the letter is no

WASHINGTON CRITIC | more complimentary to either sex than come of the nerimonious passage quoted above. Here it las "I dislike and detest a premature movement, that would cost away the higher power or woman and send her lute the ring I struggle, muscle for muscle, with the elfish, grasping, organizing, unjust unintellectual brute that civilization lea

> There are thoughts and thoughts in Mr. O'Rellly's letter, and some of them very suggestive. It would be a more forcible production were the writer more of a cold-blooded logician and less of a chivalric gentleman.

First Assistant Postmaster-Gen-RHAL STEVENSON IS a very handy man with a guillotine, but he certainly shows consistency. The postmaster at Berlin, Ill., was an active Republican, and clearly came within the pale of offensive partisanship. When General Stevenson got his grip on him he wen rapidly. He then appointed a Democrat to succeed him, and that Demo eral was no other than Mrs. Price, the wife of the bouncee, of whose Demos racy there cou'd be no doubt. She was always a Democrat, and the most earnest arguments by her husband never made an impression on her Jeffersonian principles. Her word in the Price household always had a solid Demo cratic vote. Mrs. Price will now boss the administration of the Price affairs. Mr. Stevenson knows how to strengthen

Some time ago the New York Grant Monument Fund Association received as a contribution a Confederate bank note of the denomination of $50. A New York man-this is strange but true-has bought the note at its face value and the $50 has been turned over to the fund. Now is the time to subscribe. People who cannot afford to contribute genuine money to help the fund out, should, if they happen to have any Confederate notes lying around the house, send them to the Grant Association at once. This would be an inducement to New York people to contribute. The New Yorker won't give up anything unless he gets something for it.

LORD JOHN MANNERS, England's Postmaster-General, like Lord Lorne at Brentford, was to have delivered an address at Leicester last night, and like young Lorne he did not make much of an address. There was a terrible confusion and a general smashing-up of furniture. It is a pretty how-de-dewhen a member of the Cabinet cannot address a few words to an audience without being mobbed. No such thine as the head of the Postoffice Depart ment being prevented from speaking could happen in this country-especial ly if the stalwart first assistant was acting as Postmuster-General.

A CIVIL SERVICE examination of unusual interest was held in New York yesterday. Alderman Sterling, the Brooklyn liquor dealer who was suspended after his appointment as weigher in the custom-house without an examination, was one of the forty five applicants who were examined New York is much interested to know how Mr. Sterling panned out, for he is a very practical politician.
